HPGS 15th Biennial Conference

*Preparing for the Aging Tsunami:
Hawaii and Pacific Rim's Perspectives*

October 18-19, 2010

Hilton Hawaiian Village Beach Resort and Spa

The U.S. is bracing itself for the major impact and changes that will restructure our society by the unprecedented number of baby boomers as they enter their “golden years” and redefine Aging.

Next year's conference will explore how we must examine and craft new public policies, services, and businesses in order to prepare for this aging phenomenon that will challenge our resources, culture and economy. We will also look to our neighboring Pacific Rim countries to see how they are addressing this increasing demographic shift in their aging population.

Committed to Hawaii's Elders

Founded in 1979, the Hawaii Pacific Gerontological Society is the largest, voluntary multidisciplinary group for elders in Hawaii.

We discuss, network, and share information about issues and policies affecting older adults.

Our membership consists of more than 400 older adults, caregivers, gerontology educators, medical and social services practitioners, and organizations from every sector of the community.

Our membership allows special advantages, including:

- Networking with experts and leaders in the aging field;
- Educating the public about aging and aging issues;
- Influencing awareness of major issues affecting older adults in Hawaii and the Pacific; and
- Participating in the broad range of HPGS activities, committees, and offices.

Active in our Community

As a valued member of the Hawaii Pacific Gerontological Society, you will receive:

•HPGS Newsletter. This quarterly publication distributed to members in print and electronic versions, reports on major news, activities, and events relating to aging both locally and nationally.

•Quarterly Forums. Our special forums present timely and relevant issues such as health care financing, long term care options, and discussions on national and local policies on aging..

•Biennial Conference. A two-day event held in even-numbered years offers both professional and educational venues on aging research, practice and policy that attract both national and international participants.

•Membership Alerts. These alerts provide immediate electronic notices to members on significant events and opportunities with HPGS.

•HPGS Website. Our online presence provides organizational news, resources and events for members.
